MANHATTAN MARKET SELLS FOOLS PUBLIC DECLARES CASSIDY

The Manhattan Market, which, according to Harry P. Cassidy's special article in Sunday's AMERICAN, has been selling food doped with sulphates and otherwise adulterated, has made changes in its methods. "But they're still far from giving their customers a fair deal," said Mr. Cassidy today. "And I feel sure they are still outside the strict provisions of the law. The law itself is too lax—the customer gets the worst of it."

BY HARRY P. CASSIDY

I told Sunday how the Manhattan Market, a representative Cambridge food store, has been selling its customers in the food it sells, and has also, in my opinion, been breaking the law. Yesterday I paid another visit to the market. They have made an important change, but they are still far from giving their customers a square deal.

The Massachusetts law on drugged foods is lax. It leaves all sorts of loopholes. If a person finds really that the Massachusetts law is not so strict as the customer is getting up for treatment.

Should Have Been Marked

I have found in the Manhattan Market that they were selling dried fruit, canned and preserved with sulphur dioxide. I found that they were selling rice coated with glucose, starch and salt. And I found they were selling California raisins, bleached with sulphur dioxide, as "Blenched Raisins." They have been marked on the tin in which it was displayed, and on the bag or package in which it was sold, with a label which says this:

YATES REFUSES

I. W. W. OFFICE

NEW BEDFORD, Jan. 16.—At the convention of the Industrial Workers of the World's five day's session here it was voted to organize for an eight-hour work day. William Yates, national secretary, and others of the national union, and of the local union, of the Industrial Workers of the World were present in nomination.

No Essential Changes.

No essential changes had been made in the labeling of the evaporated fruits.

THE MANHATTAN MARKET IS STILL VIOLATING THE THREE OF ITS CUSTOMERS AND SELLING FRAUDULENT AND POSSIBLY ILLEGAL FOOD.

I want to quote the law in these words: Revised Laws 75, Section 18, reads in part:

"Food shall be deemed to be adulterated if it contains any added antiseptic or preservative."

The provisions of this definition shall not apply to any article in which it is shown a label on which the presence and the percentage of every such antiseptic or preservative substance are clearly indicated.

GIBLIN URGES PROSECUTION OF FOOD FRAUDS

An investigation by the Attorney-General into the matter of illegal monopolies controlling the sale and price of milk, eggs and butter in the State with a view of bringing about prosecution of such corporations, was urged before the Committee on Judiciary at the State House today by Representative Thomas J. Giblin.

The hearing was on a resolve introduced by Representative Giblin directing the Attorney-General to investigate the monopolies of price for milk, eggs and butter and other staples in general use.

Representative Giblin attacked Attorney-General Swift for failing to take the initiative in the matter and charged that milk is being manufactured at present by a special machinery.

Alton E. Briggs, secretary of the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange, and Dr. Davis, representing the H. P. Hood & Sons Milk Company, declared that they would welcome any investigation.

Representative Giblin, in arguing for his measure, said:

"This is a measure in the interest of the welfare of the people. Every storage warehouse in Boston is crowded to the doors with milk and eggs and other food products. If conditions are permitted to continue, I predict that milk will be offered at a sharp rise next year."

"Eggs have been kept in storage warehouses for two and a half years in some instances, and a half dozen times, when the price began to advance on eggs, they were taken out, mixed with milk and sold as 'vanned'."

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND,
DAILY AND SUNDAY

The Eight Reasons Against Free Canal Passage for Our Coast- wise Trade

There they are in the picture—the Eight Reasons—the Eight Transcontinental Railway Lines—the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific, the Union Pacific, the Southern Pacific, the Missouri Pacific, the Santa Fe, the Canadian Pacific and the Milwaukee & St. Paul.

There they are—puffing and steaming, and blowing, and charging heavy rates by agreement as long as they can—seeking to drown public opinion in their clamor and noise, so that they may continue to charge heavy rates by agreement for all time to come.

They fought the Canal during the period of its inception and growth. Now that it is built, they are fighting its service to the people who built it.

Our coastwise vessels mean the carriage of our American products from one coast of our country to another—from one side to another side—from San Francisco and the West to New York and Boston and Philadelphia and the East. We can carry these products by water cheaply and economically—and the East and the West can sell cheaply to each other if each can transport cheaply what it raises and what the others want. This is the great compelling reason why at an enormous cost we built the canal.

The transcontinental lines never carry cheaply unless competition compels them to do so. They do not dread competition with other continental lines, because they can combine to charge the rates they prescribe. What the transcontinental lines dread is water competition. Water competition, unless they own it, compels cheap rates. When the government owns the vital link in water competition they cannot combine with it to oppress the people. Therefore the transcontinental lines dread government-owned water competition, and they fight it in each of the many ways they know how to fight.

They are fighting now with all their might the government's proposition to allow its coastwise vessels to pass free through the government's great canal.

As long as they can prevent the government from giving the freight of our coastwise vessels this exemption of $1.25 a ton through the canal, just so long can the transcontinental lines impose this $1.25 a ton upon their freight across the continent. Is it plain?

The transcontinental lines under water competition carry freight cheaply from San Francisco, and Portland, and Seattle to New York. But these lines charge or have charged as much to carry freight to Denver, which is half way across the continent and has no water competition, as they charge to carry it fifteen hundred miles farther on to New York.

Under water competition through the Lakes and the St. Lawrence, the vertical continental lines carry freight from Chicago through Atlanta and three hundred miles on to Jacksonville, Florida, cheaper than they carry it to Atlanta.

When the government put a duty on lemons to protect the fruits of California, the Transcontinental Lines immediately added a freight charge exactly equal to this duty on lemons, and thereby destroyed the government's consideration for a struggling industry of the Pacific coast.

And today the transcontinental lines are fighting to make sure that through the canal the government has built our coastwise vessels cannot bring a cargo of California fruit any cheaper than England can bring a cargo of her Asiatic goods.

These are the Eight Reasons against passing our coastwise vessels free through the canal. These are the Eight obstacles that have laid themselves sheer across the canal to bar free passage to our ships. These are the Eight opponents that are joining with England to thwart the purpose of the government in this vast enterprise.

The transcontinental lines—their owners, their stockholders, their agents, their officials and their gigantic lobbies—are making the greater part of the clamor that is opposing the people in the canal and the coastwise trade.

Every reason is a selfish reason. Every argument is a selfish argument. Every plea is tainted with self-interest and insincerity.

Corporations have more selfishness than soul. They think less of patriotism than of profits. They care more for profits above all things, and patriotism can come in if it can find a place.

Don't misunderstand the sentiment against the canal and our coastwise vessels. Don't fail to remember the source from which it comes. Don't fail to trace the Eight Reasons Against the Canal to the Eight Reasons and their Railway Rates!

And don't fail to refute and rebuke them all at the ballot with the simple answer of patriotism and common sense.

The Interests Have Stolen a Seat in the Senate from Massachusetts

On Monday the AMERICAN said that the election of Mr. Weeks to the United States Senate by the remnant of the old Republican party would not cost Massachusetts and the nation too much if it lost to the Republican party its few remaining sincere and patriotic adherents.

In times like these, when the whole country is reawakened; when even bad actors are ashamed of the financial orgies of the past; when State after State is sloughing off its old reactionary barnacles; when the President-elect is declaring from the public platform that "the people have turned their faces in the direction of progress, and any man who goes contrary they will reject," when, in Wilson's words, "a new spirit is beginning to thrill the nation," it is a sad day for Massachusetts to lose her opportunity to put a man in the Senate in touch with the spirit of the times.

The sons of Massachusetts, in the great progressive sections of the country, will wonder when they learn that the old Bay State has put John W. Weeks in the seat of Charles Sumner.

Americans who know the history of Massachusetts will wonder that a Commonwealth which was once a leader among the States in all the great movements to better human conditions should now be engaging in the mire of standstillism. They remember the bold, hardy and progressive spirit in which the little Pilgrim colony was founded; they remember where resistance first started against taxation without representation; they remember where Lexington and Bunker Hill were fought; they remember where Garrison, Phillips, Sumner, Whittier, Lowell and Longfellow lived, who spoke and wrote against the big selfish interests of half a century ago that wished to preserve the one great blot upon our Constitution, the one contradiction to our Declaration of Independence, human slavery.

They remember how the old standpatter of that day, the Cotton Whig, cried them down in the interests of the big business. They remember how Amos Lawrence, the big cotton manufacturer of that day, conspired to put Daniel Webster out of the Whig party, which

Ultra-violet Rays Enable Us to Find Out What the Moon Is Really Made Of

Few Thousandths of an Inch Difference in Length of Light Waves
Gives Us Key to Whole Thing

By GARRETT P. SEERVIS.

THE old joker who declared that the moon was made of green cheese probably thought that nobody could ever disprove his statement because it would be impossible for man to find out what the moon really was made of.

If he could revisit the earth now he would be less astonished to see men flying through the air than to find out that they have actually discovered the composition of the moon without going there.

It is 240,000 miles away, and we have not yet succeeded in crossing the empty space separating it from the earth, but, nevertheless, by the properties of the light reflected from its surface we are finding out what it is made of.

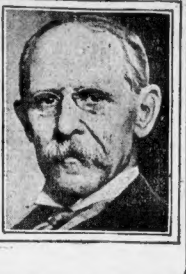

These strange discoveries are based upon the fact that the photographic plate can "see" waves of light which are totally invisible to the human eye. Our eyes grasp a certain range of light waves varying from about 1-34,000 to 1-70,000 of an inch in length, but there is an abundance of "invisible" light, whose waves are both much longer and much shorter than those of the light which we see.

Certain Rays Outside of Visible Light Spectrum

The longer waves are called "infrared rays," i. e., below the red, and the shorter ones are called "ultra-violet rays," i. e., beyond the violet, the red and violet being the limits of the visible spectrum of light.

Now, it happens that these rays, which lie beyond our eye-reach, are reflected with varying degrees of intensity by different substances. We cannot see them directly, but the photographic plate can make them sensible to us. If only we can separate them from the flood of invisible light that envelops them. This separation can be effected by means of colored screens and of certain transparent for special kinds of light, the quartz. By such means Professor R. W. Wood of the Johns Hopkins University has succeeded in making photographs of the moon with the ultra-violet rays alone, and the results are truly astonishing.

These photographs reveal some of the substances of which the moon's surface consists. Let us see how this revelation is made. Professor Wood noticed that in his ultra-violet photographs of the moon a huge "crater mountain" known to astronomers by the name of Aristarchus, which is some thirty miles across and which has in its center a peak that glitters at all composed either of snow or of a pile of glass, was partly surrounded by a black deposit which is invisible to the eye when the moon is examined with a telescope. The thought occurred to him that the nature of this mysterious deposit might be ascertained by finding out what materials on the earth present a similar appearance when photographed in the same kind of rays.

Accordingly, he took two specimens of volcanic rock, or tuff, and made three photographs of them, one in yellow light, one in violet light and one in the ultra-violet rays. He found that the image of one of the pieces of tuff, which lay on top of the other, was almost invisible in yellow light, was darker in the violet and was always black in the ultra-violet, while the other specimen did not show similar changes. Then he analyzed the specimen that photographed dark in the ultra-violet rays, and found that it contained iron and a little sulphur.

Thereupon he took a rock and stained it with iron, but this showed equally dark in the violet and the ultra-violet. Next he sprayed a part of the rock with sulphur vapor, producing a deposit of iron sulphide on the surface. When this was photographed in the different kinds of light the deposit was invisible in the yellow, came out gray in the violet, and black in the ultra-violet. Since this was exactly the appearance of the strange deposit around the crater Aristarchus on the moon, when photographed in similar lights, the inference was irresistible that Aristarchus is surrounded by vast deposits of sulphur, whose existence would never have been known to us but for the curious power of the ultra-violet rays.

There are similar deposits around other mountains on the moon, and the fact is so well known that most of these mountains are of volcanic origin, since it is well known that on earth the volcanoes are always surrounded with deposits of sulphur.

Experiments Are Only Beginning of New Method

The experiments of Professor Wood may be only the beginning of a new method of celestial exploration, which when it is perfected will produce still more astonishing discoveries. Already the possibility has been discussed of employing the infrared as well as the ultra-violet rays for this purpose, and inasmuch as every substance probably has its own preferences in regard to the kind of rays that it reflects, there is no improbability in predicting that photographic charts of the moon will be made which will show the character of the minerals abounding on different parts of its surface as a geological map shows those of the earth. So a wonderful page in the history of our little neighbor world will be thrown open. Thus does intelligence defy space and time.

The Interests Have Stolen a Seat in the Senate from Massachusetts

brought forth from Webster, speaking in Faneuil Hall, the famous challenge, as he turned to Lawrence, who was seated on the platform, and said, "I am a Whig, I am a Massachusetts Whig, I am a Faneuil Hall Whig, and if any one proposes to read me out of the party, now is the time and this is the place to do it."

They remember how the electoral vote of Massachusetts went to the great ralliplier.

But Massachusetts is not changed. Her people still retain the old spirit of '76 and '81. Her Legislature does not represent the people of Massachusetts in the election of Mr. Weeks. The present Republican majority in the Legislature which has perpetrated Mr. Weeks upon the Commonwealth, represents an overwhelming minority in the last election. The people of Massachusetts by more than 160,000 majority voted for progress. They will have been denied by representatives elected in gerrymandered districts and pulled and hauled, threatened and tempted by the forces behind Mr. Weeks.

The special interests have stolen a seat in the United States Senate from the people of Massachusetts. Everybody knows it in this State, and let us hope that everybody will know it throughout the country, for Massachusetts cannot afford to increase the unpopularity in which she has stood in recent years with the rest of the country on account of the acts of her representatives in Congress.

If, in the struggle to elect Mr. Weeks, the old Republican machine has worn down its teeth to the gums, some good will come of Mr. Weeks' election.
